Hospital eyeing February accreditation inspection

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Officials at Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis are currently working to remedy several previously cited deficiencies before an upcoming Joint Commission of Hospital Accreditation re-inspection.

Several months ago the hospital lost accreditation, but Hospital Corp. of America Management Co. of Nashville has since been contracted by the hospital's board of trustees to improve the local facility.

Interim Hospital Administrator Lamar Brooks said Tuesday the commission has scheduled an inspection of the hospital sometime during the last two weeks of February.

Brooks noted a recent commission inspection cited "overcrowded conditions" in several offices, storage areas and specialized departments within the hospital.

The interim administrator said the inspection also revealed a lack of proper "documentation" for various policies and procedures.

"There is an effort underway to try to find more space. Some departments need extra space and space is at a premium," he explained.

To remedy these problems, Brooks reported he suggested several alternatives to the trustees at a regular meeting Monday night.

Air strip animal pound site request withdrawn

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will proceed with a public hearing Monday evening, though the Hancock County Animal Control Commission has withdrawn its recommendation to locate a proposed animal shelter on an abandoned air strip near the County Fairgrounds, according to James Pfeiffer, deputy chancery clerk.

Pfeiffer said Wednesday, "I have checked with Walter Gex, board attorney, and he advises that the supervisors will have to go ahead and convene the hearing because it has been advertised."

Celestin J. (C.J.) Dumestre, commission chairman, submitted a letter Dec. 16 to the supervisors withdrawing the air strip site recommendation.

The reason stated in the letter by Dumestre was, "...for the betterment of all concerned hereby withdraws...the abandoned airstrip adjacent to the County Fair Grounds for the erection of the Hancock County small animal confine."

Dumestre further stated in the letter that another site is being considered by the commission. He did not disclose that location.

The Bay-Waveland Humane Society has been concerned about the construction of a new shelter. The one now being used has to be abandoned in Bay St. Louis.

Funds for the construction of a new shelter have been allocated by the Cities of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

Fenton family in dire need

A destitute Fenton Community family is in dire need of household items and building materials to reestablish their home—hopefully before Christmas.

Reservoir may be needed

By BRENT MACEY

The potable and industrial water tables in areas of the Mississippi Gulf Coast have been dropping at a rate of four feet per year, James Head, director of Gulf Regional Planning in Gulfport, told the Hancock County Board of Supervisors at their meeting Monday morning.

Head said results of the drop could be 'disastrous' to Hancock County and other neighboring coastal communities within the next five to eight years.

"Dupont is using a great deal of water—and if we get another heavy water use industry, we could be in big trouble," Head said.

As a result, the board voted to support a bill to be introduced in the January session of the state legislature recommending formation of a Coastal Independent Streams District.

The district would be managed by Gulf Regional Planning Commission to Harrison County has already approved the bill which Head said needs the endorsement of at least two

Census update shows increase in area cities

By BRENT MACEY

The Bureau of Census in Washington recently sent mail-o-grams to the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland correcting previous inaccuracies in tabulated head and housing counts.

Both cities had complained about census figures received in early August of this year from the bureau.

The figures are very important to the cities in figuring amounts of state and federal funding assistance.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland, said he was 'very pleased' with the new census figures.

The figures show an increase of 373 people in Waveland, from an initial count of 3,850 to the current figure of 4,223 people.

Longo said the new count could mean as much as a $20,000 a year increase in state and federal funding.

Bay St. Louis shows an increase of 381 people from 7,469 to 7,850 people, according to the revised figures.

Mayor Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis said, "I still do not feel that these figures are accurate."

Bennett said the Gulf Regional Planning Commission had completed a census of Bay St. Louis shortly before the Census Bureau undertook the 1980 census.

According to Bennett, the commission's results showed 8,400 people living in the city; 550 people more than the recent census correction.

"I still feel there are more people in the area," Bennett said.

"This is not a final census from the bureau, however," He added.

"According to the mail-o-gram, this is only a preliminary figure. It states the final count to appear sometime next April or May, may differ from the figures above."

Bennet said the census bureau also lists Bay St. Louis as having a 20.8 percent housing vacancy.

"They are saying that one in every five houses is vacant," Bennett said.

"This is wrong," Bennett said. "He would wait until he address in the telephone directory and asked house members if they had been counted."

"I reported the discrepancies to census bureau headquarters in Hattiesburg," Longo said.

"They were very cooperative and understanding," he added.

In addition, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday received a report the total population of the county is 24,592, according to the Census Bureau.

Some 12,441 houses were reported in the county by the Census Bureau.

receives the final figures before voicing another complaint.

Longo said the initial figures from the bureau were 'quite obviously wrong.'

"I know practically every house in the city," Longo said. "I could tell by just looking that the census was wrong."

Longo said the bureau counted only 10 people in the Middletown area while Idlewood Subdivision was skipped altogether.

He said the city checked the number of box holders at the post office and also the gas and water listings. He said a girl in the office also called every

School board to discuss Gulfview roofing Friday

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Condition of the roof at Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshore will be discussed at a Hancock County School Board meeting Friday morning.

Roofing repair work was performed after a tornado severely damaged the school in May.

There apparently has been some question regarding the quality of material used on the roof.

School District Architect John Mykolyk of Pass Christian said Wednesday a Dow Corning silicone roof coating or a equivalent product was specified for the Gulfview roof.

The architect reported the water-based Anchor Sun Shield coating was used on the roof which he claims is equal to the Dow Corning product.

Jim English, a vice president of MIRI, Inc. of Long Beach, (the company which applied the coating at Gulfview), also endorsed the product in a telephone interview Wednesday.

However, Hugo Carbajo, president of Roofing Systems and Coatings, Inc. of Gulfport, (a roofing materials supplier) claims the roofing material used by MIRI did not meet the specifications for the job.

"The difference is the Dow product is a solvent base. That's what the specifications called for," he said Wednesday.

"Sun Shield is a water base product and is not equal to the specifications for the Gulfview job," Carbajo stated.

"The difference is the water base needs certain weather conditions to be applied and you get certain results," he reported.

The solvent in the Dow product evaporates and doesn't allow water to get in," Carbajo added.

The Gulfport material supplier said the Dow product costs $21 per gallon and requires 2.5 gallons per square.

Carbajo stated Sun Shield coating costs $12.50 per gallon and requires three gallons per square.

"These are the specifications from the manufacturers," he reported.

"We are concerned that a strong wind might take the material off the roof," Carbajo stated.

Several weeks ago Mykolyk presented a 'punch list' of deficiencies he found in the roofing work which he claims have now been corrected by MIRI.

Mykolyk speculated, "I think probably the wet weather caused the problems."

"Primarily the fault may be the climatic conditions," he added.

English reported, "We've done nothing whatsoever that the school board didn't know about."

"You can get other foam contractors to bid on an emergency situation like this and you would not get a lower bid," he stated.

"We did a good job and we will give a WARRANTY-Page 10A

Gulfport to Fenton to use as a home after fire completely destroyed their family residence and all their possessions.

The poverty-stricken family had no insurance on any of the property lost in the fire.

Linda Malley is an epileptic and Oliver Malley is disabled, so the couple relies on State Department of Welfare funds and food stamps to support themselves, their two daughters and an infant grandson.

Although they are battling their own handicaps, the family is attempting to piece together a home with limited assistance from friends and relatives.

The Fenton woman reported her family could have obtained a new residence through the welfare department, but her husband was determined to provide a home with their own limited resources.

Fire, apparently caused by an electrical wiring failure, leveled the Malley's three-bedroom residence Oct. 26.

Linda Malley said Tuesday she and her husband have resided in Fenton for some 17 years. For the last 13 years they've lived in her husband's family home at the end of a winding dirt road just north of the Fenton and Firetower Roads intersection.

"We've lived in daddy's house for 13 years. He willed us his home and land before he died," she stated.

"We all had just left the house about 15 or 20 minutes when the fire happened. We lost everything," Linda Malley sadly reported.

"The electric company (Coast Electric Power Association) said the wires in the house caused the fire," she added.

The old home the Malley's moved from Gulfport rests on the same site their original house occupied.

But traces of the October blaze still remain physically with blackened limbs of two ancient fig trees near the north side of the house and charred remains of lumber, appliances and furniture sitting in the surrounding yard.

In a heroic attempt to view the bright side of her family's disaster, Linda Malley noted she likes how the living room of their house faces the south; their original home's living room was on the north side.

She also proudly exhibited a new hot water heater in a crate on the front porch donated by a friend.

"We don't have a refrigerator, stove or anything yet and we're sleeping on the floor," Linda Malley said as she pointed out a mattress on the floor in a corner of a bedroom.

The home has no electrical service yet because relatives are now rewiring the house to insure against another electrical accident.

Edna and Clyde Page of Lakeshore, Linda Malley's parents, recently gave the Fenton family a butane heater to keep out winter cold.

But the home needs extensive repairs inside and out.

Sister Joseph McNutt, MSBT, advisor to Kiln Annunciation Parish's St. Vincent de Paul Society, said Tuesday the church organization is trying to help the family.

The parish group's primary function is to aid the needy in central and northern Hancock County.

Sister Joseph stated, "Their new house is in a shambles. We've gotten them blankets and sheets, but they need a lot more things."

"The house needs a lot of work to insulate it properly. They need furniture and curtains mostly, and household items like dishes, pots, pans and utensils," she explained.

Linda Malley said she expects it to be several months before their house is truly livable.

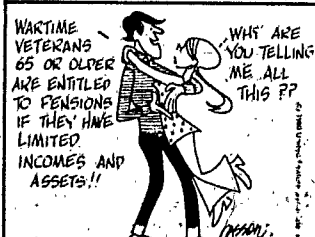

But possibly, in the giving spirit of Christmas, local residents will join together to help this struggling couple again provide a safe and warm home for their family in just a few weeks.

Bits 'n pieces

Talk about parties, they are going on all over the county. We did not realize just how many of them are happening. It is too bad they could not be spread out over the year.

Everyone is saying there are too many parties going on at the same time.

All the food at these parties also seem to be heavy in calories and those of us trying to watch our weight are having a hard time.

Oh well, it is the Christmas season, a time to be jolly.

The decision of the Hancock County Animal Control Commission to withdraw its recommendation to locate the animal confine at the abandoned section of the old air strip is a very good idea.

There are a lot of pros and cons on the selection of the old air strip and all parties have valid arguments.

We hope there will be no objections to a new area being considered by the commission.

There is no need for our citizens to be arguing back and forth during the Christmas holiday season.

We would like to join the officers and directors of the Hancock County United Way in thanking each of you for your help during the 1980 campaign.

We are not going to try to name any specific persons, because it was a unified effort that helped make the 1980 campaign receive more donations and pledges than ever before in Hancock history.

So many folks in our community enjoy the benefits of these monies and we know all of them appreciate the help received. The United Way of Hancock County is community action at work.

We are glad to see efforts being taken by the City of Bay St. Louis to again update the zoning classifications of city property.

It seems that it will be a big job, but here are a lot of questions about zoning of property that need answering by the residents of the Bay.

So as not to fall into the same difficulties some property owners are now facing, we suggest every person with property in Bay St. Louis check the new map when it is available.

It seems many changes were legally made in 1964 and few are aware of these changes.

We will do our best to inform you when the new map is ready.

Counting Calories Important to Health

Calories do count, folks. You need calories to sustain health. But the intake must be limited to needs, or you get fat.

Think of calories as fuel — the fuel that is used to keep you alive, alert and moving. If you take in more fuel each day than your body can use, the excess is stored as fat.

Most people leading moderately active lives need about 15 calories per pound to maintain their weight. If you want to stay at, say, 150 pounds, you can eat foods containing 2,250 calories each day. That's 150 multiplied by 15.

If you're well above your ideal weight, you'll have to cut back on calorie intake and use more of the stored fuel to lose. There are approximately 3,500 calories in each pound of stored fat. So, to lose one pound a week, consume 500 fewer calories each day. For the 150-pounder, this would be a total daily intake of 1,750.

Or, if you want to lose two pounds each week, cut back by 1,000 calories less than the amount needed to maintain weight.

It usually is unwise, says a pamphlet from the American Medical Association, to try to lose more than two pounds per week because rapid weight loss may leave you tired and vulnerable to illness. If your plan is to go on a crash diet, lose weight quickly, and go back to those thick milkshakes and 12-ounce steaks, you are probably going to have lifelong weight problems.

Taking off weight and keeping it off means a changed approach to eating and exercise habits for the rest of your life. This is why the crash diets all fail in the long run. You can take off pounds quickly on many fad diets, but those pounds go right back on again when normal eating is resumed.

If you are obese or have had a weight problem for years, see your family doctor before launching any do-it-yourself diet. Some heavy people have unsuspected illness.

Hancock animal shelter could be a tourist attraction

12-12-80

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, Ms.
To The Editor

Dear Sir:

From all I've been hearing about the proposed dog shelter, it seems there are more pros than cons.

Could it be that the 'cons' may just have an aversion towards animals especially dogs and cats, rather than the prospect of the shelter being out of line with the area environment.

I'm writing this letter, not because of a partiality towards animals, but only because I see the urgent and growing need for the proper incarceration of canines and felines, not only for their own good, but for the satisfaction and protection of the general public. I live in close proximity to the Bay facility and I do not experience any unfavorable odors, or any other undesirable features, that could be caused by dogs, being sheltered there.

As well as children and adults love to visit the variety of animals in Audubon Park, New Orleans, couldn't we have such an attraction and visitation from people everywhere, who love animals, going out to see the dogs and cats, in the newly proposed Hancock Animal Facility.

We would hear no more about the lack of progress for the care of animals in Hancock County.

Very Sincerely
Eleanor Everett McFie

Shelter objections inconsequential to need for facility

Dec. 11, 1980
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Editor:

Knowing human nature, regardless of where a site would be suggested for a new animal shelter, someone will be living near it and objecting to it.

It is time we stop being petty and start thinking of the general need and good of the community.

I love Bay St. Louis, but I have lived in a number of places in the United States and have never seen such an inability to pull together for the common good as I have witnessed here. It really is deplorable!

The present shelter situation is deplorable. Not only is it totally inadequate but it is a disgrace to the county.

The only facility we have is an outdoor pen for dumping animals unsupervised, for adult dogs only.

There is no facility whatsoever for puppies or cats and kittens.

I have had to take kittens to the Harrison County Shelter which has graciously accepted them in addition to their own county's burden.

I suggest we stop being a burden to our neighboring county and solve our own problems.

My hat is off to the fine people who have done an outstanding job trying to handle the problem with so little to work with.

They have instituted a fine spaying program. They have opened their own homes to the destruction of furniture at their own expense for the care, feeding and placement of the animals the rest of us don't want to be bothered with.

Surely it's time we come to the aid of these unselfish people.

Having seen a map of the proposed area, there is no one living on the property which is approximately 1800 feet on its front.

One dissident's adjoining property is not currently occupied, but "might" be in the future.

It is currently used for horse and cow pasture.

Mr. Seuzeneau does apparently live next to this property, but I doubt the new facility would prove to be much of a bother to him or the other individual mentioned because:

Mr. Isom and I live on Chantilly Terrace just around the corner from the current outdoor site.

I've lived here four years and have not been bothered by noise or other conceivable problems at all.

The new facility would be more of a shelter and even less visible and audible.

I also have friends who live even closer to the current pound on Second Street and it has not been a problem to them.

Additionally, if dissidents are concerned about property values, I doubt this would be a problem, as the present pound has not deterred the construction, over the past couple of years of some very fine two-story homes even closer to the property than the other homes mentioned.

Frankly, I would be just as content if the new facility would be constructed on the present site. It couldn't be any worse, and as I said, the current one has not been a problem.

In fact, I think the expansion of commercial property into the area would be more of a problem. But you haven't heard anyone in this area complain about that. We all have to give a little.

If anyone has been to the Harrison County Shelter which is a complete facility, they will agree that its grounds and buildings really only take up a small area, so I am sure there will continue to be plenty of space for the other activities as well in the area, which I haven't heard objection to by local residents.

Let's stop the bickering and start working together to solve our problems.

Sincerely,
Maggie Delcuzze

Humane Society projects benefit animals, owners, and public

To the Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

I have noticed that the Humane Society has been active in programs to help not only the animals but also the owners and the rest of the public.

They have had numerous dogs and cats spayed and neutered and also have had many animals adopted.

Many members have had some dogs and cats confined in their yards until some are adopted.

It was with quite some satisfaction to many of us that the Hancock County Supervisors, the City of Bay St. Louis and the City of Waveland have appointed a commission to supervise the new animal shelter and have contributed to a fund for erection of the shelter.

The location, as I understand, of the new animal shelter is to be on the east side of the old air strip, and about 1,500 to 2,000 feet from the back end of the strip.

Surely, this is quite a distance from Longfellow and any resident.

Wishing to congratulate all concerned on quick completion of the animal shelter, I remain

Yours Truly,
Piccola Dietrich

Animal pound site neighbors continue objections to location

December 15, 1980
Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

In recent letters that have appeared in The Sea Coast Echo, several people have made statements regarding the abandoned air field on Washington Road, site of a proposed dog pound.

They have said it would be a perfect location because it is in a non-residential area.

Well, I have big news for them who are making this statement - there are many long time residents who have been in this area for over 45 years.

Any officials who are putting their seal of approval on this move, please try this move in your own back yard first.

If you can handle it for one month then we will consider it.

This proposed site would be in our back yard. After all, barking dogs are not sweet music to the ears. Neither would the smell of the dog pound be very pleasant.

We have four children and I do not want them exposed to any dog and cat diseases.

Now, if you need a decent request, we would like to see a playground for the children put on our so called abandoned air field.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J.
Lafontaine Sr.
Washington Road
Bay St. Louis

P. S.
We are permanent residents of this area and we feel that it should be the voices of the people who live in this area which prevail in this matter, not those who live in the city limits or just weekenders.

Selfish few blocking progress to benefit entire county

The Sea Coast Echo
To the Editor

Dear Sir:

I write with thoughts of the welfare of all Hancock Countians in mind - not just a griping few with only self-satisfying interests in mind.

It is beyond my comprehension why this worthy project (proposed animal shelter) was allowed to progress - with this ideal site in mind without opposition until this late day in planning.

I am speaking of the planned animal shelter on a portion of the "abandoned air strip."

Mr. and Mrs. Bermond tell us that after 11 years of do-nothing they "might rebuild" their neighboring property in two years.

Are we going to hold up county-wide progress for two years on the "maybe probability" of one family?

I feel quite sure that when Rev. Johnson identified this property as "abandoned" he took into consideration that only a part of it is being used for public benefits - farmers' market, for rodeos and horse shows as Mr. Seuzeneau tells us, plus a public fair ground.

The rest, as Jack tells us, is used only by a few individuals for their own personal benefits - to fly their model airplanes, run their dogs, and practice their golf skills.

After considering the above personal uses, which add up to little or no benefits for the overwhelming majority of Hancock Countians, why shouldn't this property be considered "abandoned?"

After viewing plans for this facility which is several hundred feet from the Seuzeneau home as well as the Bermond property; I can't imagine their privacy being unjustly disrupted, and it appears there will still be ample room for the individual play boys.

If we get any farther out neither Bay St. Louis nor Waveland will reap the necessary and much needed benefits from this facility.

As for our "New Orleans readers" "butting in" as Seuzeneau seems to feel they are doing, let's show them that we are capable of having a better facility than they provide in their own city.

Thanks
Earl Lizana

Need for animal facility in Hancock County called 'desperate'

Sea Coast Echo
Dear Editor:

Hancock County is in desperate need of an animal shelter.

In my area there are homeless strays wandering around, turning over garbage cans in search of food.

Instead of making a nuisance of themselves, these poor unwanted creatures could be properly cared for in decent surroundings.

Many times litter of puppies and kittens are dropped off in strange neighborhoods left to find for themselves and usually slowly starve to death.

With a properly established animal shelter these helpless little animals could be left there where people desiring a loving little pet could go to the shelter to choose from the animals available for one to be taken to a good home.

So let's back Mayor Longo, Mayor Bennett, and the Humane Society in their choice of the most convenient site available for the shelter.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Henry Matthis
Waveland

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I'm making a New Year's resolution to set up an advertising program and follow it. How Much Trouble Will I Have?

Dear HMTWTH: Not nearly as much as you will have if you don't.

All too often so-called businessmen consider how much it will cost to advertise, but fail to consider how much it will cost them if they don't.

Advertising pays for itself in increased sales.

If you elect not to advertise, you pay the price several times over in decreased sales and lost opportunity.

A wag once noted: "If you don't have anything to advertise in your business, you need to advertise your business for sale."

To set up an ad program you need to go through sales records for the previous year. Calculate increases you feel you need to make and then budget the amount you anticipate spending on advertising by week and item to be promoted.

Try to advertise before you expect peak demand for various items, and then continue to promote sales during the period of demand.

Establish an amount for advertising depends on the market, the kind of store you have, and you.

National averages are available for the various types of stores, but like all averages they include the successful and the unsuccessful. So to decide to be average would be setting a rather low mark for yourself.

For instance the average for all stores is reinvestment of some one per cent of sales in promotion. So if you spend less than one per cent, you need to seriously go over your promotional strategy.

But, don't feel smug if you actually average one per cent. This figure needs to be further qualified if you are in a business that deals in high mark-up merchandise, or if any of your expenditures is in the form of donations to various groups selling what they call advertising.

Establish a theme or a general slogan for your annual program that reflects your overall goal for the business. Then see that all your ads either state or imply the theme in appearance, presentation, and message.

The important thing is to have your plan in calendar form with sufficient lead time for the various seasonal goods. And then force your self to follow it through the year, making the necessary adjustments to the directions given by your business. You haven't previously had! It could also be beneficial in purchasing.

Social workers outraged by 'Public Assistance'

"The new board 'game' 'Public Assistance' contradicts the spirit of Christmas and should be taken off the market," said Chauncey A. Alexander of Washington, D.C., executive director, National Association of Social Workers (NASW).

"Christmas is a season for giving and helping those who are less fortunate than ourselves, not for making light of economic deprivation, unemployment, disability, and sickness which is exactly what this new game does."

NASW is urging its 85,000 members and all concerned citizens to boycott any stores selling this game," he added.

"Its developers based their game on pernicious myths and stereotypical ideas about the poor in America," Alexander said.

"Their misconceptions about welfare recipients were bred out of ignorance, racism, and sexism."

"Responsible merchants should refuse to market a game which is slanderous and such an outrageously cheap shot at the integrity and decency of our country's most vulnerable citizens," he declared.

"There are several myths perpetuated in this game which distort public understanding of the welfare system and recipients of public financial assistance which need to be corrected," Alexander stated. "They are:

MYTH NO. 1: People are poor because they don't work and don't want to work.

FACT: More than 70 percent of all those receiving benefits from the AFDC (Aid to Families With Dependent Children) program - the largest assistance program - are children. Nearly two-thirds of those children are under twelve. Therefore, child labor laws would have to be repealed to put the largest percentage of those receiving assistance to work. Of the remaining 30 percent, 26.2 percent are mothers. Only 2.4 percent even resemble the mythical welfare stereotype - non-aged, non-disabled males, who do not work.

MYTH NO. 2: Most of the poor in this country remain poor all their lives.

FACT: The average AFDC family receive assistance less than two years.

MYTH NO. 3: The poor are mostly black and other non-whites.

FACT: Sixty-nine percent of the American poor are white.

MYTH NO. 4: Poor don't know how to spend their money.

FACT: Low income people spend a somewhat greater proportion - about 80 percent - of their income on food, clothing, housing, medical care, and transportation than do people with higher incomes.

MYTH NO. 5: Many welfare families receive payments that are too high.

FACT: In 24 states, the combined benefits of AFDC and Food Stamps total less than three-fourths of the official poverty income level which is currently $7,450 for a non-farm family of four. In fact, in the State of Mississippi, AFDC benefits total $120 a month for a family of four; in Texas, the amount is $146; and in New York City, where welfare critics claim payments are unduly generous, maximum AFDC payments have not increased one cent since 1975 despite a 46 percent increase in the cost of living.

"NASW and the 85,000 professional social workers it represents urge a boycott of the unconscionable merchants who, by selling this game, are exploiting the unfortunate circumstances of this country's most vulnerable citizens," Alexander said.

NASW believes this game could unjustly and seriously hamper efforts to truly reform our nation's welfare system," he concluded.

If you, like I, are of the Scarlett O'Hara school of cooking - you know, "I'll think about that tomorrow" - you have probably, just as I, found that all those luscious treats you'd meant to make for Christmas gifts are still just a figment of your imagination and there's still nothing on hand to fill those pretty jars or boxes or what have you.

Well - there's still time, though I must confess that when my sons were very young and I was very busy, that Christmas Eve often found me finishing up the brownies I, as a young wife and mother on a limited wartime, then post-war-time budget (World War II, that is) had made my own trademark for Christmas giving.

Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the cocoa and remove from heat. In a bowl, mix the eggs, sugar and vanilla. Add the flour and mix and blend well. Pour the butter-cocoa mixture into the flour mixture, and stir in the pecans.

Bake in greased cake pan, oblong, at 350 for 30 minutes, approximately - we like them rather moist and chewy, you make like them more "cakey" you cooked 'em too much," as my family used to say if I had left them overlong in the oven - but that's your preference.

At any rate, let the brownies cool, before you cut them. and - enjoy!
(Copyright, 1980 Katharine D. M. Caire)

We lived at that time in an old Victorian house in uptown New Orleans, with windows that stretched from ceiling to floor, and since our draperies didn't quite meet, I was all but onstage as on Christmas Eve I put the finishing touches to the brownies ... in fact, at times, friends would see the lights and stop by and demand a taste!

Those days are long gone, those little boys long grown, with little and not so little boys of their own - one has two, one has four - but what they used to call "Best Brownies" bring back those days in full measure.

So if you want a recipe for an even later than last minute gift, here's

A GIFT THAT SAVES LIVES

This Christmas among the tinsel and all the other brightly wrapped presents place the gift that saves lives, a General Electric Home Sentry™ Smoke Alarm.

The protection and peace-of-mind provided by the GE Smoke Alarm lasts the whole year through, but it is especially important during the holiday season. According to the United States Fire Administration, over 106,000 home fires occurred in December 1978, resulting in approximately 750 deaths.

Selecting the right smoke detector is essential. GE's Home Sentry Smoke Alarm is a good choice because it is easy to install and affordable to most families. Should it detect smoke, the alarm is triggered, sounding a high pitched horn to awaken household members.

This year give your family a gift that will keep them safe long after the holidays are over. Give a Home Sentry Smoke Alarm.

You won't find a U.S. Government warning label on this Amana Radarange MICROWAVE OVEN
NO OTHER MANUFACTURER HAS EARNED THIS GOVERNMENT LABELING EXEMPTION!

TOUCHMATIC II (TM) Model RR-10A

After Radarange Ovens passed a series of torture tests, the U.S. Government granted Amana an exemption from displaying a warning label on the door of all "RR" series Radarange Ovens (and derivative models).

In one of these brutal tests, Amana actually hit the door seal with a 5-pound steel ball from a height of 8 feet! And after every test, the Amana ovens did not allow microwave leakage in excess of the Federal standard. Because the patented Amana Choke Door Seal reflects microwaves back into the oven.

No other microwave oven manufacturer in the world has earned this U.S. Government exemption.

MITZI PLESSALA

Plessala in youth competition

Michael J. Ryan, principal of Our Lady's Academy in Bay St. Louis announced recently that sophomore Mitzi Plessala is the school's candidate for the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, International Leadership Seminar competition.

"Leadership qualities in high school sophomores are promoted in this foundation. The local competition was open to all high school sophomores. Criteria for selection consisted of evidence of emerging leadership ability, cooperation with fellow human beings and sensitivity to the needs of others, ability to relate to new pursuits and acquaintances, and the desire to learn and share knowledge and experience with others," Ryan said.

"Mitzi will now compete with other high school representatives from Mississippi. One boy and girl from the state will be chosen to attend the annual, all-expense-paid, week-long International Leadership Seminar on America's Incentive System, sponsored by Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation and coordinated by Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., April 21-28," the principal explained.

"Candidates will be selected at state level by a 'Blue Ribbon' committee, composed of 53 nationally recognized leaders. Those chosen to participate in the international Leadership Seminar will interact with top tenth graders from every state in the nation and 12 other countries and with prominent leaders in business, government, education and the professions," he reported.

"The foundation was established in 1958 by Actor Hugh O'Brian to seek outstanding high school sophomores and provide them with opportunities for their potential leadership abilities to emerge, develop and be recognized," Ryan added.

Runners-up at OLA are Mary Yarborough, Stacie Gilmeyer and Angel Ambrose.

Members of the local selection committee were Beth Schmidt, Diane Tilton, Ms. Mary Ann Pate, and Ms. Mary Kay Jones.

Hospital..... CONTINUED from page 1A

Brooks recommended the board purchase a 20-foot by 30-foot steel building to house the maintenance department office, its equipment and supplies.

The administrator said he obtained quotations of $7,500 and $11,000 for a steel building with sprayed roof insulation, but electrical work, air conditioning and heating would have to be added and authorized by the board.

The trustees took the quotations under advisement.

"We want to free up space in the hospital and get equipment out of the halls," Brooks reported.

Brooks said the hospital needs additional space for its pharmacy, laboratory, X-ray laboratory and switchboard.

The interim administrator also reported a trailer behind the hospital, which has been used to house emergency room doctors, will also be used for hospital management offices.

"The idea was to move people out to generate space. We will be adding three offices by doing this," he noted.

"But this trailer can still be used as a doctor's office," Brooks added.

He said the steel building and full utilization of the trailer would allow room for the pharmacy to add an "intravenous admixture program."

"The pharmacist could add drugs for certain patients to intravenous mixtures," Brooks explained.

"One of the primary pieces of equipment necessary for this operation is a laminar flow hood which draws filtered air toward you," he stated.

Brooks said the device is needed to provide a sterile environment for this procedure, but presently there is no room for the necessary equipment.

Additional space would also provide a "separate room" for the hospital switchboard.

The interim administrator reported, "The switchboard panel and operator are now jammed in with the emergency room admission office."

Brooks also noted the X-ray and hospital laboratory facilities must be expanded to alleviate overcrowding.

Regarding upgrading paperwork at the hospital, Brooks said policy and procedure manuals have to be updated, special committees must meet regularly and those committee meetings should be documented.

"Documentation is the key to passing the commission survey," he stated.

Brooks also presented the board with a preliminary proposal to expand automatic parking at the hospital.

The board took the matter under advisement.

Brooks said Tuesday, "The board suggested in the spring possibly the county could build the parking area."

"We are looking at a 1,324 square-yard area between the hospital building and the County Health Department," he explained.

"This would more than double the parking area we have now," Brooks added.

"We don't have much parking at all, we only have a single line in front of the hospital and a small area by the emergency room. This is very inadequate," he stated.

Brooks also reported some $100,000 plus in equipment is needed for a "Step Two" development of the hospital's new Intensive Care Unit.

The administrator said the Step Two program would take some six months to complete.

"We need a new monitoring system which will cost from $50,000 to $70,000, a new head-of-bed console costing between $10,000 to $12,000 and a special air conditioning unit," he listed.

The administrator said the air conditioning unit would have special air filters, maintain a constant humidity level and circulate fresh air into the rooms at least six times per day.

"The unit has been staffed. We've hired a few more registered nurses and we've trained a few of our own licensed practical nurses and RN's in a special class here at the hospital," Brooks stated.

In other business at the 7:30 p.m. regular meeting in the hospital's conference room, the board:

—Met in executive session for some two hours to discuss personnel and a financial situation;

—Accepted a $1,955 bid from Hotel and Restaurant Supply Co. of Meridian for a stainless steel freezer for the Dietary Department. Brooks said American Legion Post No. 139 in Bay St. Louis will reimburse the hospital for the freezer;

—Authorized the administrator, Controller Mike Halford, Accountant Mary Turcott, Treasurer Conrad Mauffray and Trustee Brother Martin Hernandez, SC, as signatories for checks;

—Authorized reduction of employee probation period from six to three months;

—Renewed a contract with Pitco, Inc. of Bay St. Louis for maintenance of mechanical equipment. Brooks said the $3,780 annual contract represented a four percent increase from last year. The agreement calls for changing and cleaning filters; maintaining fans, coils, condensate drains, seals in bearings, the cooling tower and air compressors; tightening belts; and lubricating parts on equipment;

—Heard a report from Halford that collection letters have been sent to delinquent accounts and if payments were not received, telephone calls will be made to those individuals. Brooks said there is some $1 million in "accounts receivable"; —Heard a report from Brooks that the hospital's average daily census for November was 26 patients. The administrator said an average daily attendance of 35 is needed for a "good operation."

'very good' recommendation at the commission's last meeting.

Colly suggested that all zoning changes made after an official map is selected to be posted in a separate book whereas they are now all mixed in with all the minutes of the council.

Ronnie Murray, Gulf Regional representative said, "We have made two 'official' maps in recent months. The first time we held a hearing and decided it wasn't correct. We took another map and thought it was correct."

The recent loss of a tenant by Woodford Seller in a building he thought was commercial, only to find it was residential, has brought to light the fact that many citizens do not know the zoning of their properties or the changes made in 1964.

Vegas stated, "When the zoning was done, there is some property that is split in zoning, and that is not right. We feel there were many mistakes, especially in the annexed areas."

Council President Pete Benvenuti who suggested the hiring of Englehorn said, "We need a legal decision, we need the minutes researched back to 1964. I feel that Englehorn, since he was the former city clerk, should be able to do the job at a proposed salary of $5 per hour."

Seller told the Council about his property's position for many years and mentioned the various commercial establishments in the area.

Vegas did indicate that if Mr. Seller had another potential tenant for his building, they would call a meeting as soon as possible to act on his request.

Fred Wagner, council member, mentioned the special use ordinance which was passed in recent months by the city for the change in zoning for a specific business.

If the business ceased operation, it would revert back to residence if it is in that designated area.

Some of the merchants on Washington and the Beach feel the ordinance on zoning was not legal and questioned Benvenuti.

The Council President said, "In 1964 the city fathers went through all the legal channels in advertising, holding public hearings in the zoning of the city. To the best of my knowledge, the area of Washington and South Beach is zoned residential."

Council decided that no action would be taken until a new map of the zoning is acquired.

The motion by the Council stated that the information and new map be adopted as quickly as possible.

Pet gift keeps giving all year

Please remember the animals at the Harrison County Humane Society. A pet makes a wonderful gift that will show its gratitude every day of the year.

If you have puppies or kittens that need homes, bring them to the Harrison County Humane Society for Christmas. No fee will be required for bringing them to the shelter if you tell us you heard it on the radio or read it in the newspaper.

There is a real need for old blankets at the Harrison County Humane Society as the concrete floors get very cold in the winter.

If you have old rugs, bedspreads, towels, or blankets - our pups will appreciate them.

The Society also has a great stock of pet supplies. All proceeds are used to operate the shelter.

Write Christmas appeals for all our furry friends at the Humane Society. (A public service message from The Harrison County Humane Society.)

Deputy reported satisfactory

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Mary Beth Iwanczyk was reported in satisfactory condition and slated for release from intensive care unit of Gulfport Memorial Hospital Wednesday, according to a hospital spokesman who said the deputy sheriff is recovering from a gunshot wound of the abdomen.

Douglas Williams, Bay police chief, in a report stated, "The Bay St. Louis Police Department received a call at 10:40 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13. The caller, Mary Beth Iwanczyk, 29, 209 deMontuozin, Bay St. Louis, reported to officers that she had accidentally shot herself while trying to unload a .22 cal. pistol."

The police report further stated, "Ms. Iwanczyk was treated at Hancock General Hospital and later transferred by Mobile Medic to Gulfport Memorial."

Investigating officers were Chief Williams, Investigator Matt Karl, and Lt. Gordon Campbell.

Bay Police on duty were Russell Watts, Robert Williams, Chris Sands and Joe Tutt.

Ms. Iwanczyk is employed by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Players to offer first production

The Waveland Junior Players Little Theater will present "Pink Roses for Christmas" at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

The play will feature talent from various schools in the Hancock County area and is being directed by J.R. Roth, a lyricist, from Belfast, Northern Ireland.

Cast members include Daren Stech-mann, Michele Hietzman, Daniel Kenny, Derek Stechmann, Sharon Orlin and Michelle Ashman.

"This inaugural presentation hopefully will pave the way for young Mississippians to reap cultural benefits available here in our own back yard," Roth feels.

Admission is free, and the public is invited.

full five-year warranty. We did a job that can't be matched," English said.

"We do an awful lot of work with schools and our work has never been questioned..." the MIRI vice president reported.

English cited 'unusual conditions' after the May tornado with heavy rains may have caused some of the 'alligatoring' problems cited in Mykolyk's punch list.

"Whenever you have skylights, as you have at Gulfview, your going to have to come back and do some additional caulking," he noted.

"We went back and put additional material on the roof. It cost us more money to put the Anchor coat on than the Dow material," English said.

"We had alligatoring problems with the Dow product on a roof at Hancock North Central High School," he stated. "We had the school board agree to use Anchor coating on HNC because of this problem," English said.

"Dow is more per gallon but Anchor requires more coating per square. The Anchor coating is double the thickness of Dow," he reported.

Carbajo stated, "The school district needs a warranty and that comes from the manufacturer and the contractor applying the product."

"If they don't apply it properly the company can't give a warranty. I want to make sure the school is protected," he said.

However, Mykolyk reported, "There's a five-year warranty on the Gulfview roof and the school district is retaining some $5,000 on the job until it's approved."

Water Table....

counties.

He added, "There is plenty of surface water run off which can be controlled by a program of this nature."

Ernest Boswell, hydrologist for the U.S. Geological Department in Jackson, said in Jackson Wednesday Bay St. Louis city wells have dropped 32 feet in the past 19 years.

Boswell said that drop indicates an average drop of 1.7 feet per year.

"The drop agrees pretty well with the drop in Gulfport," he said.

"Bay St. Louis is using only 600,000 gallons of water a day," Boswell said. "Not enough to make a large decline."

He said Pascagoula is facing "water quantity problems."

Surveys show a drop of between four and 12 feet per year in that area, Boswell stated.

He said Bay St. Louis receives water through wells dug to depths of 900 and 1,200 feet.

According to Boswell, water reserves in the Bay St. Louis area extend to a depth of 2,000 feet.

In other business, the board heard a dispute over an extension of Adams Street in Pearllington named Bayou Coward Road.

Joel Blass, attorney for James Baldree, property owner in Pearllington, said the road, currently not in use, is recognized in the platted area map of the region and has been used by the county for taxing purposes.

Another road, 37 feet south of that road, is currently being used.

Baldree contends the road, currently in use is on his property. He wishes the road be changed to the platted road.

Aaron Adams, attorney for Ronald Rogers, contends a plat of the area was filed by an unknown person years ago.

"There is no official plat," Adams said. "The area in question is a piece of raw county land."

Adams contends the current road should remain unchanged.

A suit filed by Rogers on the matter was recently dismissed in Chancery Court when Rogers, living on a boat off the coast of Florida, could not be located by Adams before the court date.

Blass asked the board to declare the platted road the legal road.

"There's no guarantee that attorney Adams will be able to get hold of Rogers to appear before another hearing," Blass said.

Adams said the case is a matter for the courts and asked the board not to interfere.

The board moved to take the issue under advisement until next Monday in order to view the road in question.

In further business, the board:

—Accepted a low bid of $22,783 by Southern Resources Mapping Corporation for aerial photographs for the county reappraisal project;

—Accepted a bid of $2,230 by Huntton's Inc. for mapping equipment for the reappraisal project;

—Accepted a bid of $19,364 bid by Mulford Contractor of Wiggins for stripping of 62.266 miles of county roads;

—Approved a 30 mph speed limit for Betty Younger Drive;

—Filed no objection to a case to be heard in Chancery Court concerning the vacating of two areas on Bismark Street—between McLaurin and Ladner Streets, and between Ladner Street and the north right-of-way line on US-90. Businesses in the area have petitioned the county to vacate land dedicated to future streets;

—Authorized Henry Otis, county registrar of voters, in cooperation with Bay St. Louis city officials, to move vote-a-matic machines to locations around the city if and when the city plans to use the machines in upcoming elections;

—Informed a citizen of Good Street that a larger culvert will replace a present culvert currently three feet above mean high tide causing drainage problems in the area;

—Informed a citizen of Blue Meadow Road that further blacktopping would be forth coming;

—Approved the November claims docket of The Port and Harbor Commission. The board directed Wilson Webb, commission executive director, to contact the company contracted to do road work around the Borg-Warner Plant and see if they would pay a $125 bill from F&F Welding Company for modification of a bull dozer to accept a front end rake. The board claimed the welding work should have been considered as part of the contract.

Also Monday, the supervisors directed board attorney Walter Gex to look into the matter of the board's payment to the Hancock County School Board.

The board currently pays one-half the amount of the state severance tax to the school board; an amount which compensates for the states reduction of the county school board's Minimum State Requirement Program.

The program funds are used by the school board to pay teachers' salaries and employment benefits.

Gex said several other counties do not pay one-half the severance tax to the school board.

He was directed by the board to find out how the other counties work the payments.

Marketing specialists present crop outlooks

MARKETING TIPS FOR DECEMBER. Compiled by marketing specialists, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Soybean situation: Soybean markets in recent days have been down about $2 per bushel in response to a number of world factors. The factors include the Polish-Russian crisis, 20 percent interest rates, disappointing levels of exports, a stronger U.S. dollar, a continued grain embargo on Russia and favorable crop conditions in Brazil.

Outlook: Marketing Specialist Truett Bufkin said the important factor between January and March will be the progress of the soybean crop in the southern hemisphere. "Latest reports indicate a crop of 19.4 to 20.6 million metric tons, which compares with 19.24 million tons a year ago," Bufkin said. "Currently, favorable crop conditions suggest a South American crop at the upper end of the range, 20.0 to 20.6 million tons. This would be bearish to prices."

Advisory: "Continue to trade old and new crop beans on market rallies," Bufkin said.

Wheat Situation: Wheat markets are anticipating the national winter wheat acreage planting report due late this month.

"The consensus is that a near record acreage will be planted in 1980-81," said Marketing Specialist Truett Bufkin.

Outlook: "Long term, the wheat market has to be bullish," Bufkin said.

Advisory: "Farmers should evaluate the July 1981 futures. When the market offers them their price, they should consider selling at least a portion of the 1981 crop," Bufkin said.

Cattfish Situation: Farm prices paid by major processors dropped 2.5 cents in early December to 65 cents per pound.

"The drop was no surprise because of seasonally slow sales and excess supplies of market ready fish," said Marketing Specialist Dr. Michael Jones.

Outlook: "Prices are expected to remain down until January or February when sales traditionally increase," Dr. Jones said.

Beef Situation: "High interest rates and high feed grain costs have kept prices for stocker and feeder cattle from showing any real improvement.

"Out cattle industry is still looking for something positive to move prices higher," said Marketing Specialist John Wilson.

Outlook: The holidays are expected to disrupt trade in late December, but prices are expected to remain relatively firm on this light volume trading for the rest of the month.

Hog Situation: Several negative factors, including large runs at terminal markets, larger inventories of pork products in cold storage, and generally weak prices, have kept market hog prices from reflecting any marked improvement.

Outlook: "Better prices are expected in early 1981 as slaughter levels trend lower," said Marketing Specialist John Wilson. "Producers are expected to trim production by at least 10 percent during the first half of next year."

"Price improvement later this winter, however, may be tempered by large volumes of pork products in cold storage."

Area Scout council elects officers

Miller, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of Hibernia Corporation and Hibernia National Bank in New Orleans, was elected president of the New Orleans Area Council-Boy Scouts of America, at an Annual business meeting on Dec. 10. Brig. Gen. A. M. Stroud Jr. was re-elected council commissioner with Col. Alvin R. Vath as assistant commissioner. Elected as vice presidents were Robert Eckart Jr., J. Marc Sancho, Carl T. Leboeuf, Charles W. Nutter, Al Cooper, Darwin C. Fenner, Charles C. Teamer Sr., James M. Cain, Jimmy Fitzmorris and Eddie Conrad.

H. D. Graham Jr. was re-elected treasurer, John P. Laborde as sustaining membership enrollment chairman and Frank E. Lawrence Jr., scout executive.

Outgoing council president James M. Cain, thanked the over 5,000 excellent volunteer scouts for helping to make 1980 a record year.

Ole Miss scientists find poison ivy serum

University of Mississippi scientists who developed a treatment for poison ivy and poison-oak expect to see their product on the market within five years.

The Ole Miss School of Pharmacy's Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences has signed a licensing agreement with Hollister-Stier, a pharmaceuticals company based in Spokane, Wash.

"This marks a breakthrough in the treatment of people suffering from problems associated with poison ivy dermatitis," said Dr. Carlton Turner, director of the Research Institute.

"This discovery and its subsequent marketing will have an extraordinary impact on controlling poison ivy," Turner noted.

"Ole Miss will receive a royalty based on product sales. Development of the product may take five years," he explained.

Ole Miss scientists have filed patent applications for their discovery, which was developed over a 10-year period.

"The Ole Miss discovery may make it possible to immunize infants and children so they will never develop reactions to poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac, and to protect adults who have already been exposed to the plants," Turner stated.

The treatment was developed by Dr. Sue Watson, a research assistant professor and immunologist for the research institute; Dr. Mahmoud Elshohly, assistant director of the institute and a pharmacognosist; and Dr. Coy Waller, former director of the institute and a natural products chemist.

Turner added, "The Ole Miss studies involved isolating urushols - chemicals in poison ivy, oak and sumac plants which cause a rash if they penetrate the skin - and studying chemistry of the plants."

In the last four years of the study Watson and Elshohly developed compounds and methods for prevention and treatment of allergic reactions to the plants.

Six flags included in history of Hancock, Pearl River counties

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

If you could have driven the present route of Highway 11 down through Mississippi in 1810 you would have passed out of the United States and into another nation when you drove through what is now Lumberton.

As you drove on south through what is now Poplarville, McNeill, Carriere, Picayune, Nicholson, Pearl River and Slidell you would have been traveling through the independent nation of West Florida.

You would have continued on through West Florida until you reached the middle of Lake Ponchartrain, when you would have re-entered the territory of the United States.

The history of that part of South Mississippi lying south of the 31st degree of latitude is very different from that part of the state north of this line and is very different from the history of any other section of the United States.

The old line of demarcation between the English possessions, and the French and then the Spanish, was the 31st degree of latitude, which is the present northern boundary of Pearl River County.

By right of discovery, France has long laid claim to all this region but not until January 1699 was any move made to possess and occupy it. At that time d'Iberville anchored off what is now the Mississippi Coast. He had been sent by the French government to explore and colonize Louisiana. He established his headquarters at Biloxi, which became the first capital of Louisiana.

In 1717 Louisiana was handed over to a company of French speculators, headed by John Law. This company established their headquarters at Biloxi. Due to bad management and improper understanding of conditions at the new world the Law Scheme failed.

The whole area remained under the dominion of France until on March 19, 1763, by the Treaty of Paris, France surrendered to England all her possessions in North America east of the Mississippi River. At the same time Spain ceded to England her colonies of East and West Florida.

At about the same time the Island of New Orleans and the French territory, west of the Mississippi river were ceded by France to Spain. There had been a great realignment of territories.

Almost constant wars in Europe and the outcome of these wars brought great changes in the history of this part of the world. When Spain became involved in a new war with England and in 1799, Don Bernard De Galvez, the alert Spanish governor of Louisiana, attacked and captured British forts at Baton Rouge, Mobile and Pensacola, bringing West Florida which included what are now Pearl River and Hancock Counties; again under the flag of Spain.

The Spaniards held Louisiana, along with West Florida, until 1800 when all this area was ceded by Spain to Napoleon Bonaparte with all its metes and bounds, which carried it to the Perdido River in Florida.

Napoleon, with half of Europe at war with him and threatened with the sea power of England, found himself unable to take possession of Louisiana which at that time included Pearl River and Hancock Counties.

Napoleon secretly sent his brother to New Orleans to try to work up a rebellion in favor of France, but the brother failed to arouse any interest. The emperor's brother made his headquarters, while on this mission at what is now known as Napoleon on the river below Picayune - that is what gave this point its name. To prevent the seizure of all this great territory by the British, Napoleon sold Louisiana to the United States on April 30, 1803.

Under the Louisiana Purchase the United States claimed all this coastal region of South Mississippi and on over eastward to the Perdido River. But the Spaniards insisted that East Pearl River was the eastern boundary of Louisiana and not the Perdido. In this dispute the Spaniards proceeded to occupy all of West Florida with strong military forces.

The United States at that time was not prepared to go to war, so tried to settle the dispute through diplomatic negotiation. This matter remained unsettled and in doubt until 1809.

West Florida, including Pearl River and Hancock Counties, was bounded on the north by the 31st degree of latitude - the old line of demarcation - on the south by the Gulf of Mexico and an imaginary line drawn through Lakes Ponchartrain and Maurepas and the rivers of Amite and Manchac to the Mississippi River and at that time extended from the Apalachicola River in Florida to the Mississippi, including of course; Baton Rouge.

Over the years as many thousands of Americans had settled up and down both sides of Pearl River and in the territory between the Pearl and the Mississippi under grants from both the Spanish and British governments.

These hardy settlers, practically all from the United States, became more and more dissatisfied with the frequent changes in government and with the many conflicting land claims. They liked neither the Spanish or the British. Numerous rich tracts of land were claimed by more than one person. When the English came in, they refused to recognize certain land claims that had been granted by Spain and vice versa.

The title to one of the old claims at Walkiah, a place worth much money, was so uncertain that a man named Parker, who had spent much money improving this place, sold his claim, when a dispute arose, for $15 in cash and left, saying that he was going to where he could buy a piece of land and it would belong to him.

Brilliant lawyers from up east moved into West Florida because of the great amount of litigation over land claims. One man said of his claim, "There are enough law suits in it to cost me more than it is worth."

Instead of getting better, conditions got worse. In 1810 enough of these settlers banded together to seize the Spanish Fort at Baton Rouge. They organized a convention, adopted a flag and declared their independence with the name of the new nation as West Florida. They sent out military forces to force allegiance to the new nation. Later on that same year they applied as a sovereign state for admission as a state to the United States.

President Madison on the 29th of October 1810, no longer fearing the waning power of Spain, issued a proclamation declaring that West Florida was within the limits of Louisiana when ceded by France to the United States and directed Governor Claiborne, of Orleans territory, to take civil and military possession of same.

In pursuance of these orders Governor Claiborne took over West Florida without opposition. The American settlers had accomplished their main objective - the placing of their territory under the jurisdiction of the United States.

For a time chaos reigned in this area. Bands of Jay-hawkers, brigands and robbers roamed this section. At one time there were big warehouses, built by buccaneers, at Gainesville for the storing of goods of all kinds which had been hi-jacked from ships in the Gulf of Mexico.

A scramble now developed as to what would be done with the territory comprising West Florida. George Poindexter, a man of great ability and later governor of Mississippi, was Mississippi's territorial representative in Congress. He took all possible measures to get all of West Florida added to the territory of Mississippi. In this he was opposed by Louisiana interests who wanted it all added to Louisiana. Some few plugged for a new state.

A compromise was reached with the lines that now prevail. Mississippi getting all the territory from East Pearl River to St. Stephens Meridian, which is the Mississippi-Alabama line today.

With the raising of the United States flag over this new territory, five flags had flown over it - the French, the Spanish, the British, West Florida and the stars and stripes of the United States. Then in 1861 the Bonnie Blue Flag of the Confederate States of America was unfurled, making six flags in all to fly over what is now our home.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER & CROP REPORT

December 14, 1980

WATHER SUMMARY (National Weather Service): A cold front moved through Mississippi Tuesday producing a general one to two inch rain statewide. The greatest one day rainfall was 2.99 inches at McComb.

In fact, it was also the greatest weekly total. Most all stations had temperatures 2 to 4 degrees above normal for the period. Memphis was the notable exception where they were 8 degrees above normal. Highest temperature for the week was 80 degrees at Merrill on the 8th.

Lowest reading was 17 degrees at University on Saturday night. Continued fair weather is expected as we are under the influence of a high pressure system located in Louisiana.

CROP SUMMARY: Final harvest, subsoiling, liming and planning for 1981 were the main farm activities during the week. Soil moisture adequate. There were 2.7 days suitable for fieldwork compared to 4.7 days the previous week.

Soybean harvest advanced to 97 percent complete compared with 99 percent last year and 96 percent for the average.

Pecan harvest was 86 percent complete compared with 87 percent last year and 89 percent for the 5-year average.

Winter wheat was 98 percent planted, the same as last year. The crop was in good to fair condition.

Pastures were in fair condition.

Livestock were in fair to good condition.

Hay and roughage and grain supplies were short to adequate.

PEARL RIVER — If you bet on JoAnn Boatright to win a horse race at Oak Downs, it's better than a 50-50 proposition that she won't disappoint you. The 15-year-old jockey from Cantonment, Fla., racked up four wins Sunday, shutting out the field, and will coast home in the next two weeks to capture the riding championship for 1980 at the Pearl River track.

The leading trainer is John Paul Amacker of Poplarville who has saddled 24 winners out of 44 starts.

Boatwright can take the trainer title if he sends four more winners across the line than Amacker in the year's two Sundays of racing. The favorite in the jockey is Jeff Peterman of who has won 40 races for a winning percentage of 33 percent.

Bug and then piloted Bill Harris' Little Scooter Beat to first place in the 40-yard fourth against Rugh Ann Bux. Oak Downs operator Eddie Zundel said he expects a large turnout this Sunday because of two other area tracks shutting down for the winter. Zundel said he plans to stay open throughout the winter.

Racing for quarterhorses and thoroughbreds, over distances of as little as 36 feet to up to one mile, can be run at Oak Downs, which has a 5/8-mile oval track, a six-horse starting gate and a photo-finish camera that records finishes in 100ths of a second. Post time is 1 p.m. each Sunday.

Reservations for vacation cabins in the Mississippi State Parks for 1981 will be accepted beginning January 2, 1981. Reservations can be made by contacting the individual park office during regular office hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Aubrey Rozzell, director Bureau of Recreation and Parks, said reservations are not required, but are highly recommended.

"Last year, many vacationers were disappointed when they were not able to reserve a cabin," Rozzell continued, "so we urge people to make reservations early to avoid disappointment."

State Parks with cabins include Clarkco, Quitman; Holmes County, Durant; Hugh White, Grenada; J. P. Coleman, Iuka; John W. Kyle, Sardis; Leroy Percy, Hollandale; Paul B. Johnson, Hattiesburg; Percy Quin, Mc Comb; Roosevelt, Morton; Tishomingo, Dennis; Tombigbee, Tupelo; Wall Doxey, Holly Springs and George Pezom, Coahoma.

A complete list of the state parks and the facilities at each one can be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources, Post Office Box 20305, Jackson, 39209.

Gulf shrimp that are sporting colored streamers can be worth a lot of money, shrimpers from Mississippi and Alabama have discovered.

A massive research project that began off the Louisiana coast in 1977, and spread westward into Texas and Mexico in 1978, this year moved east of the Mississippi River.

The result has been a cash bonanza for local shrimpers. Researchers involved in the study are tagging captured shrimp with coded ribbons and releasing them into specific geographic areas.

However, the scientists must depend on the shrimping industry for recapture of the tagged animals. To encourage returns, a few of the tag numbers are worth $500, some are worth $100, and a

The objective of the international program is improved Gulf harvests.

Researchers are working to gain a more complete understanding of the shrimp's life cycle and the environmental factors that affect its role as the Gulf's number one fishery money-maker.

The project, funded by National Marine Fisheries Service, includes participants from the Mexican government, Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, and Sea Grant-Cooperative Extension marine specialists in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

Louisiana State University is coordinating the awards program.

In the east-of-the-river study, researchers aboard the research vessel "Oregon II" completed releasing over 40,000 tagged shrimp the end of September.

According to Dr. Edward Klima of National Marine Fisheries in Galveston, director of the project, this particular phase of the study is important far beyond local boundaries.

Scientists are trying to determine whether shrimp migrate across the delta area

"This also means that fishing in one area can impact fishing success in the other. However, is such recruitment does not take place, then if one area is fished heavily and the catch reduced, that section

He went on to say that shrimpers—who are expected to be the greatest beneficiaries of the study—are playing a major role in its success.

"Our scientists have no way of recapturing the tagged shrimp in significant numbers," Klima said. "The success of the retrieval program rests entirely on the shrimping industry."

Scientists recommend that shrimpers retrieving the coded shrimp wrap the entire animal in foil and freeze as soon as possible.

A note should be made of when and where the animal was caught

Six flags included in history of Hancock, Pearl River counties

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

If you could have driven the present route of Highway 11 down through Mississippi in 1810 you would have passed out of the United States and into another nation when you drove through what is now Lumberton.

As you drove on south through what is now Poplarville, McNeill, Carriere, Picayune, Nicholson, Pearl River and Slidell you would have been traveling through the independent nation of West Florida.

You would have continued on through West Florida until you reached the middle of Lake Ponchartrain, when you would have re-entered the territory of the United States.

The history of that part of South Mississippi lying south of the 31st degree of latitude is very different from that part of the state north of this line and is very different from the history of any other section of the United States.

The old line of demarcation between the English possessions, and the French and then the Spanish, was the 31st degree of latitude, which is the present northern boundary of Pearl River County.

By right of discovery, France has long laid claim to all this region but not until January 1699 was any move made to possess and occupy it. At that time d'Iberville anchored off what is now the Mississippi Coast. He had been sent by the French government to explore and colonize Louisiana. He established his headquarters at Biloxi, which became the first capital of Louisiana.

In 1717 Louisiana was handed over to a company of French speculators, headed by John Law. This company established their headquarters at Biloxi. Due to bad management and improper understanding of conditions at the new world the Law Scheme failed.

The whole area remained under the dominion of France until on March 19, 1763, by the Treaty of Paris, France surrendered to England all her possessions in North America east of the Mississippi River. At the same time Spain ceded to England her colonies of East and West Florida.

At about the same time the Island of New Orleans and the French territory, west of the Mississippi river were ceded by France to Spain. There had been a great realignment of territories.

Almost constant wars in Europe and the outcome of these wars brought great changes in the history of this part of the world. When Spain became involved in a new war with England and in 1799, Don Bernard De Galvez, the alert Spanish governor of Louisiana, attacked and captured British forts at Baton Rouge, Mobile and Pensacola, bringing West Florida, which included what are now Pearl River and Hancock Counties, again under the flag of Spain.

The Spaniards held Louisiana, along with West Florida, until 1800 when all this area was ceded by Spain to Napoleon Bonaparte with all its metes and bounds, which carried it to the Perdido River in Florida.

Napoleon, with half of Europe at war with him and threatened with the sea power of England, found himself unable to take possession of Louisiana which at that time included Pearl River and Hancock Counties.

Napoleon secretly sent his brother to New Orleans to try to work up a rebellion in favor of France, but the brother failed to arouse any interest.

The emperor's brother made his headquarters, while on this mission at what is now known as Napoleon on the river below Picayune - that is what gave this point its name. To prevent the seizure of all this great territory by the British, Napoleon sold Louisiana to the United States on April 30, 1803.

Under the Louisiana Purchase the United States claimed all this coastal region of South Mississippi and on over eastward to the Perdido River. But the Spaniards insisted that East Pearl River was the eastern boundary of Louisiana and not the Perdido. In this dispute the Spaniards proceeded to occupy all of West Florida with strong military forces.

The United States at that time was not prepared to go to war, so tried to settle the dispute through diplomatic negotiation. This matter remained unsettled and in doubt until 1809.

West Florida, including Pearl River and Hancock Counties, was bounded on the north by the 31st degree of latitude - the old line of demarcation - on the south by the Gulf of Mexico and an imaginary line drawn through Lakes Ponchartrain and Maurepas and the rivers of Amite and Manchac to the Mississippi River and at that time extended from the Apalachicola River in Florida to the Mississippi, including of course, Baton Rouge.

Over the years as many thousands of Americans had settled up and down both sides of Pearl River and in the territory between the Pearl and the Mississippi under grants from both the Spanish and British governments.

These hardy settlers, practically all from the United States, became more and more dissatisfied with the frequent changes in government and with the many conflicting land claims. They liked neither the Spanish or the British. Numerous rich tracts of land were claimed by more than one person. When the English came in, they refused to recognize certain land claims that had been granted by Spain and vice versa.

The title to one of the old claims at Walkish, a place worth much money, was so uncertain that a man named Parker, who had spent much money improving this place, sold his claim, when a dispute arose, for $15 in cash and left, saying that he was going to where he could buy a piece of land and it would belong to him.

Brilliant lawyers from up east moved into West Florida because of the great amount of litigation over land claims. One man said of his claim, "There are enough law suits in it to cost me more than it is worth."

Instead of getting better, conditions got worse. In 1810 enough of these settlers banded together to seize the Spanish Fort at Baton Rouge. They organized a convention, adopted a flag and declared their independence with the name of the new nation as West Florida. They sent out military forces to force allegiance to the new nation. Later on that same year they applied as a sovereign state for admission as a state to the United States.

President Madison on the 28th of October 1810, no longer fearing the waning power of Spain, issued a proclamation declaring that West Florida was within the limits of Louisiana when ceded by France to the United States and directed Governor Claiborne, of Orleans territory, to take civil and military possession of same. In pursuance of these orders Governor Claiborne took over West Florida without opposition. The American settlers had accomplished their main objective - the placing of their territory under the jurisdiction of the United States.

For a time chaos reigned in this area. Bands of Jayhawkers, brigands and robbers roamed this section. At one time there were big warehouses, built by buccaneers, at Gainesville for the storing of goods of all kinds which had been hi-jacked from ships in the Gulf of Mexico.

A scramble now developed as to what would be done with the territory comprising West Florida. George Poindexter, a man of great ability and later governor of Mississippi, was Mississippi's territorial representative in Congress. He took all possible measures to get all of West Florida added to the territory of Mississippi. In this he was opposed by Louisiana interests who wanted it all added to Louisiana. Some few plugged for a new state. A compromise was reached with the lines that now prevail. Mississippi getting all the territory from East Pearl River to St. Stephens Meridian, which is the Mississippi-Alabama line today.

With the raising of the United States flag over this new territory, five flags had flown over it - the French, the Spanish, the British, West Florida and the stars and stripes of the United States. Then in 1861 the Bonnie Blue Flag of the Confederate States of America was unfurled, making six flags in all to fly over what is now our home.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER & CROP REPORT

December 14, 1980

WATER SUMMARY (National Weather Service). A cold front moved through Mississippi Tuesday producing a general one to two inch rain statewide. The greatest one day rainfall was 2.99 inches at McComb.

In fact, it was also the greatest weekly total. Most all stations had temperatures 2 to 4 degrees above normal for the period. Memphis was the notable exception where they were 8 degrees above normal. Highest temperature for the week was 80 degrees at Merrill on the 8th.

Lowest reading was 17 degrees at University on Saturday night. Continued fair weather is expected as we are under the influence of a high pressure system located in Louisiana.

CROP SUMMARY: Final harvest, subsoiling, liming and planning for 1981 were the main farm activities during the week. Soil moisture adequate. There were 2.7 days suitable for fieldwork compared to 4.7 days the previous week.

Soybean harvest advanced to 97 percent complete compared with 99 percent last year and 96 percent for the average.

Pecan harvest was 86 percent complete compared with 87 percent last year and 89 percent for the 5-year average.

Winter wheat was 98 percent planted, the same as last year. The crop was in good to fair condition.

Pastures were in fair condition. Livestock were in fair to good condition.

Hay and roughage and grain supplies were short to adequate.

Oak Downs to remain open through winter

PEARL RIVER — If you bet on JoAnn Boatwright to win a horse race at Oak Downs, it's better than a 50-50 proposition that she won't disappoint you.

The 15-year-old jockey from Cantonment, Fla., racked up four wins Sunday, shutting out the field, and will coast home in the next two weeks to capture the riding championship for 1980 at the Pearl River track.

JoAnn and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Boatwright, have missed very few Sundays since Oak Downs reopened in June after a four-year closure. Not only is JoAnn the leading jockey, her father is the second-leading trainer.

JoAnn has gone to the post 125 times, and has won 64 of those outings while finishing second 49 times and third six times.

Her father has an even better winning percentage. Joe Boatwright has captured 21 races of the 29 times he has sent a horse to the post. That's a winning percentage of 72.5 percent.

The leading trainer is John Paul Amacker of Poplarville who has saddled 24 winners out of 44 starts.

Boatwright can take the trainer title if he sends four more winners across the line than Amacker in the year's final two Sundays of racing. Second in the jockey standings is Jeff Peterman of Gulfport who has won 40 races in 59 outings for a winning average of 68 percent.

In Sunday's racing, JoAnn rode her father's Bo-Rimbo to an easy victory in the 350-yard first race and came back in the 300-yard second to send her own Luke The Drifter to a win over Little Knot.

JoAnn rode Alvin Addison's Leroy to victory in the 350-yard third against Jim's Mud

Bug and then piloted Bill Harris' Little Scooter Beat to first place in the 400-yard fourth against Rug Ann Bux.

Oak Downs operator Eddie Zundel said he expects a large turnout this Sunday because of two other area tracks shutting down for the winter. Zundel said he plans to stay open throughout the winter.

Racing for quarterhorses and thoroughbreds, over distances of as little as 36 feet to up to one mile, can be run at Oak Downs, which has a ½-mile oval track, a six-horse starting gate and a photo-finish camera that records finishes in 100ths of a second. Post time is 1 p.m. each Sunday.

Sunday's Results
1) 350 yards, Bo-Rimbo, 19.47s, Joe Boatwright, owner; Chucky Ward, trainer; JoAnn Boatwright, jockey. Flying Scotchman, second.

2) 300 yards, Luke The Drifter, 16.62, JoAnn Boatwright, owner; Joe Boatwright, trainer; JoAnn Boatwright, jockey. Little Knot, second.

3) 350 yards, Leroy, 18.98, Alvin Addison, owner and trainer; JoAnn Boatwright, jockey.

4) 400 yards, Little Scooter Beat, 21.88, Bill Harris, owner and trainer; JoAnn Boatwright, jockey. Ruth Ann Bux, second.

Gulf shrimp that are sporting colored streamers can be worth a lot of money, shrimpers from Mississippi and Alabama have discovered.

A massive research project that began off the Louisiana coast in 1977, and spread westward into Texas and Mexico in 1978, this year moved east of the Mississippi River.

The result has been a cash bonanza for local shrimpers. Researchers involved in the study are tagging captured shrimp with coded ribbons and releasing them into specific geographic areas.

However, the scientists must depend on the shrimping industry for recapture of the tagged animals. To encourage returns, a few of the tag numbers are worth $500, some are worth $100, and a number are worth $50.

The objective of the international program is improved Gulf harvests.

Researchers are working to gain a more complete understanding of the shrimp's life cycle and the environmental factors that affect its role as the Gulf's number one fishery money-maker.

The project, funded by National Marine Fisheries Service, includes participants from the Mexican government, Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, and Sea Grant-Cooperative Extension marine specialists in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

Louisiana State University is coordinating the awards program.

Tagged shrimp may bring captor $500

In the east-of-the-river study, researchers aboard the research vessel "Oregon II" completed releasing over 40,000 tagged shrimp the end of September.

According to Dr. Edward Klima of National Marine Fisheries in Galveston, director of the project, this particular phase of the study is important far beyond local boundaries.

Scientists are trying to determine whether shrimp migrate across the delta area of the Mississippi. "If shrimp from offshore Louisiana move eastward to offshore Mississippi, or vice versa, then if one area's catch is reduced by heavy fishing pressure, we can depend on the recruits from the other to move in and replenish the pressured area," Klima said. "This also means that fishing in one area can impact fishing success in the other. However, is such recruitment does not take place, then if one area is fished heavily and the catch reduced, that section will not be replenished immediately," he continued. He went on to say that shrimpers—who are expected to be the greatest beneficiaries of the study—are playing a major role in its success.

"Our scientists have no way of recapturing the tagged shrimp in significant numbers," Klima said. "The success of the retrieval program rests entirely on the shrimping industry."

Scientists recommend that shrimpers retrieving the coded shrimp wrap the entire animal in foil and freeze as soon as possible.

A note should be made of when and where the animal was caught.

The following National Marine Fisheries agents may be contacted to retrieve the animals: Lee Durant of the Biloxi National Marine Fisheries Service Office, H.G. Hague of Pascagoula, and Colleen Fennessy of New Orleans.

Arcement, Nunn lead Cats to double wins

Wins for the Pearl River College Wildcats have been as scarce as hen's teeth during the past month of basketball action, however, all of that came to an end this past week as the PRC men knocked off two groups of Eagles.

Thursday night here at the Pearl River Coliseum, the Wildcats took a heart-stopping 90-88 double overtime win away from the Hinds Eagles to end a nine game losing streak. Saturday at Meridian the 'Cats handed that group of Eagles a 75-74 setback.

The narrow wins put the Wildcats overall mark at 4-9 at the semester break and sent the Billy Holmes led 'Cats off on vacation with a seventh place standing in the south division.

In the Hinds game Barry Arcement was the hero as he sank a 25 foot corner shot as the buzzer sounded to knot the score at 76. Pearl River, who led 39-38 at intermission, amazingly erased a five point deficit in the last minute and forty-five seconds to put the contest into overtime.

Steve Nunn, of Hancock North Central, did not get credit for any points, however, he did deflect two pass-ins by the Eagles which led to baskets for the 'Cats during the last 10 seconds of play.

In overtime, Arcement, also of Hancock, hit four of four free throws and two more hoops to lead the 'Cats to their thrilling win.

Sophomore Johnny Fells was the leading scorer as he pumped in a season high 28 points. Arcement added 25 and freshman Renee Brown accounted for 22. Hinds had four players scoring for the Eagles.

In the Meridian contest the Wildcats erased a 38-28 halftime deficit to beat the Eagles for the second time this year. Landry Cage scored all but one of his 21 points in the second half and Arcement netted his 13 counters in the last 20 minutes of play to nip the Eagles.

Johnny Fells, who has averaged 25 points per contest, his past four outings, got credit for 21 points. Brown and Williams also scored 10 each in the Saturday contest.

The Wildcats will return to action Jan. 6 against the Jones Bobcats at Ellisville.

Hunting violations bring heavy fines

Two Louisiana men were arrested and given stiff fines for violating Mississippi's wildlife laws.

Billy Don Johnson of Venice and George Bert Rowell of Buras were arrested by wildlife enforcement officer Wayne Corkern of Pearl River County and investigator Bill Johnson of Greenville on a variety of illegal hunting charges.

Rowell and Johnson were each charged with hunting deer with the aid of a light, hunting from a motorized vehicle, hunting from a state highway, disorderly conduct, and hunting without a license.

The pair was assessed $1,205 each in fines before Justice Court Judge J.B. Sherret of Picayune.

Ole Miss sophomore sharpens percentage

You could almost hear the moans and groans last spring coming from Tad Smith Coliseum. John Stroud, All-American forward, was leaving the Rebel campus. And accompanying the All-American forward were several Ole Miss and Southeastern Conference scoring records.

But the concern really wasn't for the records or for Stroud, who has now taken his considerable talents to the National Basketball Association's Houston Rockets. Rather, the commotion was for the Rebel basketball team. Bob Weltlich had carried Ole Miss from being a second-division, perennial also-ran, to being National Invitation Tournament contenders, and a team that had earned an upper-echelon ranking within the tough Southeastern Conference.

After a fine 17-13 finish, the question was who would take up the slack that Stroud's 25.2 points per game average left? The answer? Well, it might be a little premature, but it looks like a good bit of that scoring burden has fallen on the unlikely shoulders of a sharpshooter out of Somerville, Tennessee—Carlos Clark.

Yep, "CC," as his teammates call him, has currently upped his shooting and scoring average a considerable amount from what it was last year as a freshman. The man with the Spanish-sounding first name is doing a Mexican hat trick number on most Rebel opponents this year to the tune of 17.2 points per game, up considerably from his 5.7 mark as a freshman.

He's also shooting the ball as well, if not better, than last year. Although both this year and last he hit better than 50 percent of his shots from the floor, he didn't have a game last year like he did against Alabama-Birmingham this season.

Against the Blazers, Clark canned a remarkable 10 of 11 shots from the field, for a 90.0 percentage—good enough for the best single game average ever by a Rebel.

And Carlos is only a sophomore. "I guess I started playing basketball when I was eight or nine," he confesses. "My friends used to wonder why I played ball so much."

Opposing coaches in the SEC may start wondering why they didn't notice Carlos more as a high school senior if his scoring and shooting ways continue. "I wasn't really highly-recruited out of high school," Clark said. "A lot of small colleges were interested. And then there was Tennessee, Memphis State and Ole Miss. Tennessee was pretty far from home, Ole Miss was closer, so I came here."

"I'd heard a little about Coach Weltlich, but not a whole lot. My main reason for coming here is I thought that I'd have a good chance to play ball."

By Mid-season last year, Clark, a 6-4, 195-pound guard, had gained a starting berth, and he responded by finishing as the team's fourth-leading scorer. His career-high last year was a 15-point output against Mississippi State. He was also an excellent free throw shooter, bagging 80 percent last winter.

But this year, Clark has really blossomed. He has currently connected on 26 of 51 shots from the field for 51 percent made. He has also hit 17 of 24 free throws, going into the Bowling Green game, for a 70.8 percentage. Perhaps more impressive, though, is the fact that Clark is currently the team's third leading rebounder.

"In high school, I found that I was usually taller than the opposing guards," he said. "So I learned fast that I could post those people guarding me down low, and get the easy 5-10 foot shot. I've continued doing that some here. If the man guarding me is smaller than I am, I'll take him down low and try to get the ball so I can score over him."

Clark's biggest moment, he says, came in last year's game against Grambling when he hit an 18 footer as time ran out to give Ole Miss its first win in the NIT.

"There were about four seconds left on the clock when we got the ball, with the score tied at 74," Clark recalls.

"Coach Weltlich designed a play to get the ball in to Stroud or Elston (Turner) for the last shot. We brought the ball inbounds, but Sean (Tuohy) got in trouble. I was loose on the wing, so I hollered for the ball. Sean got it to me, and I made the shot."

He grins a little when he recalls the wild, wild reaction by the partisan Rebel crowd. "Yeah," he says, "I'd have to call that my most exciting moment."

Clark is philosophical about taking over his new-found role as designated scorer, along with Turner, who is the team's leading scorer, getting more than 20 points per game, and

Roger Stieg, who is now scoring in double figures at nearly 11 points.

"I think that's just the way Coach Weltlich's system works," Clark said. "He wants the scoring to be more balanced. We talked a little this summer, and he prepared me for the job I had before me. I'm really excited about that."

And so are most of the fans that have been filling Tad Smith Coliseum this winter. (Submitted by Ole Miss Sports News.)

Cable to air college hockey

Four of the country's top college ice hockey tournaments, including the NCAA Championships, will be telecast on the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, Channel 3 on the Hancock Community Cable system.

The Great Lakes Invitational from the Joe Louis

Arena in Detroit will be cablecast on Dec. 28 and 29.

Harvard will be the lone eastern representative going up against Michigan, Michigan State and defending champion Michigan Tech in the struggle to capture the title of this 15-year old tournament.

The Hartford Civic Center will be the site of the second annual Colonial Bank Hockey Invitational.

Boston University will host Bowling Green, Clarkson and the University of Minnesota-Duluth in what is already gaining a reputation as one of the nation's top tournaments. The semifinals and championship game will air Jan. 4.

Northeastern University will try to retain the crown of the venerable Beanpot Classic that it won for the first time last winter. Boston College, Boston University and Harvard will again battle it out in the traditional matchup of the Boston-area schools on February 2 and 9 at the Boston Garden. ESPN, which recently completed a two-year agreement to telecast the Beanpot, will present the championship tilt live.

The season will climax with conference playoff action, and the NCAA Division I Championships (March 26-28, 1981) exclusively on ESPN. This season's NCAA playoffs will feature eight teams (up from four) for the first time, with a "final four" to meet in Duluth, Minnesota.

Lady Wildcats top division standings

Pearl River College's Lady Wildcats have found a new home and it's right smack on top in the south division standings.

The Billy Holmes-led Lady 'Cats have a sparkling 3-1 conference mark and 6-4 overall ledger. Last year the PRC girls won only six contests and were firmly in last place from start to finish.

"I'm really pleased," said Holmes, "but, I've been saying that all season long." The PRC girls opened with two wins, before losing three straight, however, since Thanksgiving the PRC girls have racked up three of the last four conference battles.

Last Thursday night, in the final home encounter of the first semester, the Lady Wildcats edged the Hinds Eagles 70-68. Four PRC girls scored in double figures with freshman Jennifer Ramshur of Columbia leading the way with 16.

Brenda Young of Purvis tallied 14, Faith Harrell of Poplarville and Lawana Johnson of New Iberia, La. netted 13 each.

Meridian was the next victim for the Lady 'Cats as they knocked off another group of Eagles 69-62 in Meridian Saturday night.

State park re-open campgrounds

Renovation work on the campground at Paul B. Johnson State Park, near Hattiesburg, has been completed.

Glen Ray Harris, park manager, said recently all the pads are now available for use.

"During the summer certain sections of the campground were closed so maintenance crews could install new power and water lines and resurface the pads, eliminating potholes," Harris explained.

"Paul B. Johnson State Park is ready for campers with 150 camping pads for our guests," Harris noted.

Paul B. Johnson State Park is located 15 miles south of Hattiesburg, just off Highway 49.

Feathered friends assisted by well placed, proper foods

The feathered friends on your holiday gift list would like nothing more than to find their favorite foods in your backyard this winter.

The secret of attracting wild birds to your feeding stations is to provide the foods they like best and to put them in the right places, says Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine.

Just as some birds would rather eat suet than nuts, many birds prefer to eat on the ground rather than from hanging feeders.

The National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children offers these guidelines for providing a variety of wintering birds with the right foods in the right places:

—Ground Feeders include blue jays, sparrows, juncos, quail, mourning doves, pheasants, chickadees, and house finches.

Their favorite foods are sunflower seeds, cracked corn (inexpensive, but will also attract starlings, grackles, and pigeons), wild bird seed mix, and peanuts.

Feeders can be split fireplace logs (flat-side up), hubcaps (for food or water), garbage can lids, trays, shallow pans, or birdbath tops (for water).

—Tabletop or Window Feeders include cardinals, goldfinches, grosbeaks, chickadees, house finches, redpolls, purple finches, mockingbirds, and jays.

Their favorite foods are sunflower seeds, shelled peanuts, wild bird seed mix, raisins, and currants.

Feeders can be trays placed on picnic tables, benches, or stumps, or attached to windfalls.

—Hanging or High Post Feeders include cardinals, chickadees, goldfinches or other finches, pine siskins, redpolls, titmice, and nuthatches.

Their favorite foods are niger or thistle seeds, sunflower seeds, wild bird seed mix, and peanut hearts or other nutmeats.

Feeders can be plastic tube feeders, round or square post feeders (some shaped like little houses), or recycled milk cartons, detergent, or bleach bottles, which have been cut open for easy access.

—Trunk feeders include chickadees, woodpeckers, nuthatches, and many seed-eating birds.

Their favorite foods are suet or suet cakes, which can be mixed with peanut butter, seeds, and other treats.

Feeders can be wire mesh holders, plastic mesh bags (used for onions, oranges, etc.) or log holders.

"Don't be discouraged if the birds don't come flocking into your yard the first day you put out food," advises Ranger Rick. "Sometimes it takes a while for the birds in your area to discover your feeders. Once they've found them, they'll keep coming back so long as there is food for them."

Feeders should be kept clean and checked every day. Don't put out large amounts of food that could spoil or attract rats or mice. And remember that besides food and water, birds need cover. "Most birds seem to feel more comfortable eating at feeders near trees or bushes where they can perch and hide from hawks or neighborhood cats," says Ranger Rick.

It's always nice to wake up on a frosty winter morning and see a perky chickadee feeding in your backyard. And it's a perfect way to wish wildlife a "Happy Holiday."

Wildlife group offering graduate research grants

The National Wildlife Federation has set a deadline of December 31, for applications from graduate students for its 1981-82 Environmental Conservation Fellowships.

Federation spokesman Charles Roberts said recently, "To be eligible, applicants must be citizens of the United States, Canada, or Mexico who are pursuing degrees in a college or university graduate program or law school. They must be principally engaged in research, rather than course work, in fields related to wildlife, resources management, or the protection of environmental quality. Emphasis will be given to applicants intending to investigate topics of contemporary concern."

"Fellowships are offered to encourage research likely to provide information that will be beneficial to the federation's conservation education programs. The program is designed to assist a large number of research projects, rather than to provide full support for a few. Grants are awarded in various amounts up to $4,000,"

Roberts explained.

In addition to the federation fellowships the federation has since 1971 also awarded joint fellowships with the American Petroleum Institute for studies involving petroleum and the conservation of resources. The deadline for the joint fellowships is also December 31.

For information, including a list of priority topics and an application form, write the Executive Vice President, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

LANDSCAPING COURSE
Since this is the time of year to plan for additional plantings around your home, the Hancock County Extension Service is sponsoring a four-part class on landscaping.

John Davis, area horticulture specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, will instruct the eight-hour course. The classes will meet each Tuesday evening in January from 6:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. at the Agriculture Building Auditorium, 405 Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

During the course you will learn to plan use areas around your home, take soil samples, do a site analysis, learn how to select, place and care for shrubs and trees.

During one of the classes you will learn to draw up a plot plan for your home-site. Class four will answer your questions about transplanting, propagation and care of ornamentals.

Those completing the eight hours of instruction will receive a Certificate of Achievement. Class size will be limited to 30, so register now by contacting our office, telephone number 467-5456.

CRANBERRY...FOR CHRISTMAS

Looking for some way to brighten those traditional family gatherings during the holiday season? Cranberries can add appealing color at holiday time: in decoration, in the mealtime goodies or in gifts from your kitchen.

For decorating, fill a compote with fresh cranberries and use as a centerpiece for the table. String the red berries with a needle and thread for indoor or outdoor tree decorations.

In Christmas goodies, cranberries bring added flavor and bright bits of color to a variety of baked goods and meal accompaniments. Substitute an equal amount of cranberries in your favorite fruit muffin recipe or prepare this relish to serve with meat or fowl:

BERRY RELISH

4 cups of fresh cranberries

Mothers-to-be, new mothers and others can enjoy cold weather walks in style in a fully-lined button front cape of 100 percent polyester from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies and children under seven.

Agriculture Today

by Ed Currán

U.S. Department of Agriculture

Most farmers are pretty much turned off by food consumption facts and figures. But, they shouldn't be. They've got a big stake in them. Take last year's figures for example. Beef consumption declined sharply; pork moved up sharply; poultry; fish and cheese consumption moved up slightly.

These figures are important to farmers. Beef consumption moved down because production was limited as farmers switched from herd liquidation to herd build-up. But, the decline — from 89.2 pounds per person in 1978 to 79.3 pounds last year was sharp. Eleven percent. The sharpest decline in 34 years. Moreover, beef consumption in 1979 was 4 percent less than it was 10 years earlier.

Pork can be moved to market a lot faster than beef and pork producers went all out last year boosting output 15 1/2 percent. As a result, per capita consumption went up from 56.8 pounds to 64.7 pounds, the sharpest increase in five years. But, pork production was still behind that of 1969. Poultry production increased 10 1/4 percent last year.

State agency seeking Indian effigy beads

Archaeologists at the Mississippi Department of Archives and History in Jackson are looking for private collectors who possess stone animal effigy beads.

Two collections of such beads, usually in the form of animals, birds, or insects, are on loan to the archaeologists from the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

A state archives spokesman said recently, "The beads are unique to the area and relatively rare, with about 55 now known from the four-state area of Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana."

Department archaeologists believe there are more of the rare beads contained in private collections throughout the state, and they would like to study them, with an aim at recording their locations and distribution and their association with other Indian artifacts.

Recipe Box

Gift Of Food Expresses Holiday Wish

Personal expressions of "Seasons Greetings" often come in the form of festive candies, cookies or other gifts of holiday goodies. Homemade fudge is always popular. Now with the availability of a convenient mix, it is easier than ever to make perfect fudge at home. Salada's 4 Minute Fudge™ mix makes one pound of delicious chocolate fudge in minutes. Microwave directions and several flavor variations are included on the package.

Fudge mix can also be used to make three-layer Fudge Mint Brownies, a recipe that will delight any fudge-fancier or brownie-lover. A rich, nut-filled brownie is the bottom layer. A cool, green mint filling is topped by a layer of creamy fudge. Fudge Mint Brownies and creamy chocolate fudge are both ideal additions to any holiday gift list.

FUDGE MINT BROWNIES

1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 cup margarine or butter, softened
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
1 package (14 oz.) Salada's 4 Minute Fudge™ mix
3/4 cup chopped walnuts

3 tablespoons margarine or butter
4 teaspoons milk
1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract
3 drops green food coloring
1 1/2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 tablespoons water

1. Stir together flour and baking powder. Set aside.
2. In large mixing bowl, beat the 3/4 cup margarine, eggs, vanilla and 1 1/2 cups of the fudge mix until smooth and creamy. Stir in flour mixture, mixing well. Stir in nuts. Spread in greased 9x9x2-inch baking pan.
3. Bake in oven at 350° F. about 40 minutes or until tests done. Cool slightly.
4. In small saucepan, melt the 3 tablespoons margarine. Add milk, peppermint extract, food coloring and sugar, stirring until smooth. Remove from heat. Spread over warm brownies. Chill until firm.
5. Melt the 2 tablespoons margarine in small saucepan over low heat. Remove from heat. Stir in water and remaining fudge mix. Place over low heat. Cook 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Quickly spread on chilled filling. Let stand until fudge is firm. Yield: 36 squares.

There are probably more glasses and punch cups raised at this New Year than at any other time. Almost every country has a special drink for the holiday season — wassail bowls and egg nog are traditional here and in Europe.

One of the most delightful weather drinks is CocoRibe Glugg, a robust and heady blend of liquor, hot wine, spices and fruit. This version contains CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur, to impart a welcome tropical zing to a wintry eve. If you're planning a gathering for the New Year, make your toast a memorable one by filling the punch cups with CocoRibe Glugg.

COCORIBE GLUGG

6 1/2 cups (2 bottles) rose wine
1/2 cup raisins
1 teaspoon thinly sliced orange peel
1 stick cinnamon (about 4 inches)

2 whole cloves
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
2 cups CocoRibe coconut rum liqueur

In a medium-size saucepan, either glass or enamel, heat wine, raisins, orange peel, cinnamon, cloves and ginger until hot. Strain into a heat-proof punch bowl. Add liquor and stir. Serve immediately with clove-studded orange slices, if desired. Yield: 12 servings.

by Ed Blake

COTTON GROWERS HIT
The nation's cotton growers may be hit by an extra cost of $100 million annually as a result of new cotton dust standards imposed on the cotton industry by a regulatory agency of the United States government.

The cost estimate was contained in a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court by the American Farm Bureau Federation in support of a lawsuit brought against the government agency, by the National Cotton Council of America and the American Textile Manufacturers Institute.

Creator of the expensive new standards is a non-selective agency of the U.S. government, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, known as OSHA.

The Farm Bureau organization has taken on the federal rule-making group as detrimental to the American farmer and the American public, and moreover is a federal usurpation of state, local, and individual rights. The farm group has taken the position that the Act itself which created the regulatory agency does not fall within the responsibilities assigned by the Constitution to the federal government — should be repealed. And pending appeal, the farm organization is seeking to exempt places of employment with ten or fewer full-time employees from regulations of OSHA.

The U.S. Supreme Court is expected to rule early next year on the case which was appealed from the Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C. The original suit was filed against the secretary of the U.S. Labor Department and OSHA.

Dust standards were imposed by OSHA without weighing costs versus benefits as intended by Congress when OSHA was created, cotton industry representatives contend.

The total cost to implement OSHA's standards pertaining to cotton dust would be more than $2.6 billion, according to textile and nontextile cotton processing industries. The reduced consumption of raw cotton by cotton mills would cost U.S. cotton farmers more than $100 million annually, according to the industry estimates.

"If the Secretary (of Labor) persists in issuing regulations 'at will'...he will effectively be exercising his authority to make important choices of social policy in violation of the non-delegation doctrine," the Farm Bureau chief says in its summation.

The farm group pointed out that cotton is one of the most expensive crops to produce and that cotton growers with their substantial investment in their production operations simply cannot readily absorb an annual $100 million loss.

Already inflation has hit cotton worse than most other rowcrops since cotton traditionally has required extensive land preparation before planting, a long growing season, and comparatively greater use of high cost inputs such as fertilizer, herbicides and pesticides.

Mississippi farmers meeting in Jackson earlier this month during the 57th annual meeting of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation urged Congress to amend existing laws governing the power and authority of regulatory agencies to provide that in every instance a person accused of a violation shall be deemed innocent until proven guilty.

The state farmers recommended further that when charges against any person or organization are dropped or not proven, the agency responsible for the charges shall be required to reimburse the accused for the expenses incurred in his defense.

All U.S. businesses currently come under OSHA surveillance.

Local AARP join in regional meeting

A meeting of the Hancock County Chapter No. 1114 of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc. was at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue recently with President Ester Oschmann presiding.

Oschmann reported a fall 'cluster meeting' of the South Mississippi chapters is being called by Assistant State Director Stewart Bauer in Picayune at the new community center in Friendship Park. Newly elected officers and the membership and community service chairman are urged to attend.

Joe Servat, chairman for defensive driving, reported he has the quota required for a class in January. Anyone wishing to join the class may contact Servat as soon as possible.

Servat also reported on a very important legislative meeting called by Albert J. Ragusin of the Mississippi Joint State Legislative Committee to the Mississippi chapter presidents, legislative chairmen, and members of George, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River, and Stone Counties.

A slate of new officers was read and was ratified by the membership. The installation of new officers will take place at a December meeting.

Plans were also made for the Christmas party which will be at the December meeting. Each member is requested to bring a covered dish. The chapter will furnish the turkey and ham.

Oschmann suggests, "Let's all come and have a very Merry Christmas."

The word April comes from aperire, Latin for "to open."

Feed-grain program benefits explained

Feed grain farmers will not have to set aside or divert acreage from production in 1981 to be eligible for feed grain program benefits, says Frank A. Gennin, County Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Pearl River-Hancock County.

The grains included in the feed grain program are corn, sorghum, and barley.

Gennin notes that U. S. Department of Agriculture officials announced on Nov. 14 there would be no 'set-aside,' and at the same time, explained the decision was based on projected supply and demand factors.

"Worldwide production of coarse grain is likely to be down slightly from last year, with domestic 1980 crop production estimated to be 18 percent lower than last year's crop," he reports.

"With demand for grains continuing to rise, the U. S. Department of Agriculture expects a decrease in stocks and higher prices," he explains.

"As part of the announcement made on Nov. 14, all producers of corn, sorghum, and barley will be eligible for target price protection, price support loans and for participation in the farmer-owned grain reserve in 1981," Gennin says.

"The 1981 Seed Grain Program will assure producers at least the same 1981 feed grain loan rates as in 1980. The loan price will be at least $2.25 per bushel for corn and other feed grain loan prices will be based upon a feed value relationship to corn," Gennin states.

Additional details of the 1981 Feed Grain Program will be available in a few days, Gennin says.

Persons desiring additional details should contact their county ASCS office.

Glaucoma, the leading cause of blindness in the nation today, can cause irreversible vision loss without pain or other symptoms. The best defense is an eye exam every other year if you're 35 or over. ## Unusual And Practical Christmas Gifts

Wouldn't it be nice to find Christmas gifts for the whole family that are guaranteed not to get lost in the shuffle of scyres, sweaters and perfume? Finding interesting, practical gifts is not as challenging as one may think according to Mike Naravage, consumer product manager for Skill Corporation. He says a portable power tool is often an overlooked gift, but one that can be enjoyed by every member of the family for several years.

Available from as little as $22.00, power tools are becoming popular with people of all ages—more and more women are tackling projects traditionally handled by men, children are learning craftsmanship at earlier ages, and many couples are remodeling their dwellings with the help of power tools.

Selecting the right tool for the right person is not difficult and your local hardware salesperson can provide helpful suggestions.

Here are some tools that would be welcome by people on your gift list:

CORDLESS DRILLS—A cordless drill is a handy tool for handling many household chores and projects without worrying about extension cords or the availability of electrical outlets. Available in a variety of prices, shoppers should match the drill to the task. Beginners will enjoy a lightweight drill that operates at both 100 and 300 RPM, features forward and reverse and recharges in less than three hours. And, the accomplished handyperson will desire a drill that has these features, variable speed trigger control that operates up to 750 RPM and recharges in just one hour.

SANDERS—Anyone who has ever used sandpaper and a lot of elbow grease to finish furniture or remove rust, varnish and paint will appreciate an electric sander. Beginners will find that an orbital sander which operates up to 10,000 orbits per minute will probably meet their needs. However, a new belt sander has been introduced which is tough enough to tackle difficult jobs but lightweight enough to be used by beginners as well as accomplished tradesmen. Ask your hardware salesperson to see the new belt sander for consumers.

"What nobody seeks is rarely found." Pestalozzi

ELECTRIC SAWS—There are a variety of saws to match every job. Beginners will find a jig or sabre saw adequate for handling basic household chores while circular and reciprocating saws are ideal for heavier cutting. For outdoor jobs, such as cutting wood and pruning trees, chain saws are a welcome Christmas gift.

OTHER GIFT IDEAS—There are a number of other power tools that would make great gifts, ranging from portable Porta-Benches to inexpensive Moto-Tools. These items are ideal for light hobbies and projects and are available at your local hardware and building supply stores.

Skill's Naravage reminds shoppers that a power tool is a unique Christmas gift and one that will keep "giving" for years to come.

KEEP CHRISTMAS TREES MOIST WHEN BROUGHT INDOORS

If you want to enjoy your Christmas tree longer during the holiday season, keep the base of the trunk immersed in water. The water will prevent the needles from drying and the boughs of the tree from drooping. The tree will remain fresh all through the holiday season.

Christmas trees respond quickly to moisture given them if the tree is properly prepared before it is put in the water-holding stand. This means sawing off at least an inch of the butt of the trunk on a slight angle before putting the tree in the stand. The cut removes possible clotted resins that could prevent the tree from absorbing the water.

Then keep the stand filled with water by adding to it daily. A tree may absorb from a pint to a gallon of water daily, depending upon its size and condition. The water helps keep the tree needles pliable and the boughs in their natural shape. The moisture also helps to maintain the natural Christmas tree aroma throughout the entire holiday season, thereby adding more pleasure to the Christmas season.

If you want the best possible tree and have selected the tree of your choice, bring it home and keep it outdoors until you are ready to bring it in for decorating. Keep it in a pail of water. Warm rooms without sufficient moisture are tough on natural, fresh trees and cause them to dry out unnecessarily.

Extended Use Ideas: A Christmas tree's usefulness isn't over at the end of the holiday season, as it can be put to many uses around the home.

For example, the boughs can be chopped off and used as a mulch around flower beds. They can also be set upright in the yard and bird food attached to them to serve as a bird feeder. A green tree often adds a cherry spot to a bleak garden in the heart of winter. If you have a fireplace, there's no better wood than that from a Christmas tree. The pine needles add a pleasant aroma to the house and the trunk furnishes the home with additional firewood.

Instead of bonfires, more and more cities are using commercial chippers to dispose of their Christmas trees. The chips are useful for walks and other purposes around the home, particularly as decorative mulches around flower beds.

National Christmas trees offer so much pleasure to any Christmas celebration. That is why so many American families choose the real tree in their homes for a truly traditional Christmas.

FERTILIZER

Dr. Keltin Anderson of our agronomy staff tells us that fertilizer supplies for agriculture will be adequate next year. That's the good news. The bad news is those fertilizer prices are expected to increase again with 1981 prices up 15 to 20 percent over this year.

Anderson says nitrogen prices probably will increase the most, with phosphate and potash price increases matching the inflation rate.

SOUTHERN SEED

Dr. Charles Baskin of the Agronomy Department tells us, however, that soybean seed is a different story. We know that yields are down all across the Southeast. The supply of early season beans appears short and quality may not be what we usually expect.

Yields from group V beans were lower than for later maturing varieties, and supplies of these varieties are expected to be short.

Supplies of mid and late season group VI and VII beans will be below normal, but that supply is much improved over group V supplies.

Baskin says germination and seed size and shape for group VI and VII Beans are about normal.

"This will take much pressure off the soybean seed supply," he reports.

"In 1981, our producers may have to plant more acres of certain varieties than normal, but there should be enough seed to plant the desired acreage," Baskin adds.

A wide selection of fashionable maternity items is available at all branches of Mothercare, Mother-To-Be and Maternity Modes.
